
1. Purpose and Commitment

Arcnine Research LLP (“Arcnine”, “we”, “us” or “our”) is committed to respecting the privacy of individuals and maintaining high standards of data protection and confidentiality in accordance with applicable laws, regulatory expectations, and generally accepted best practices.

This Policy sets out Arcnine’s approach to privacy and data protection and explains how personal data considerations are addressed in compliance with the Digital Personal Data Protection Act, 2023 (India) (“DPDP Act”) and other applicable legal or regulatory requirements.

2. Scope and Applicability

This Policy applies to:

- Visitors to Arcnine’s website(s)
- Business contacts, counterparties, and professional correspondents
- Any individual who may communicate with Arcnine electronically or otherwise

This Policy is intended to provide transparency regarding Arcnine’s data practices and to clarify the limited circumstances under which information may be incidentally or temporarily received.

3. No Collection or Storage of Personal Data

Arcnine does not collect, store, process, use, retain, profile, monitor, or disclose personal data of individuals as part of its business operations.

Specifically:

- Arcnine does not maintain databases, files, registers, or systems containing personal data
- Arcnine does not collect names, addresses, phone numbers, email addresses, identification numbers, financial details, biometric data, or any other information capable of identifying an individual
- Arcnine does not engage in data analytics, profiling, surveillance, or behavioural tracking of individuals

Arcnine's business model and operational structure are designed such that the processing of personal data is not required for the conduct of its activities.

4. Communications and Correspondence

From time to time, Arcnine may receive communications such as emails, messages, or inquiries initiated by individuals.

Such communications:

- Are used solely for the limited purpose of responding to the specific query or communication
- Are not entered into any database, customer relationship management system, or archive
- Are not used for marketing, solicitation, profiling, or follow-up communications
- Are not retained beyond the time reasonably necessary to address the communication

Arcnine does not create or maintain mailing lists, contact lists, or communication histories.

5. Website Privacy and Cookies

Arcnine's website(s):

- Do not collect personal data
- Do not use cookies or similar technologies for tracking, profiling, or analytics
- Do not embed third-party analytics, advertising pixels, or behavioural monitoring tools

Any technical information that may be incidentally generated through standard web-hosting operations (such as IP addresses or server logs):

- Is non-identifiable in nature
 - Is transient and automatically overwritten or discarded
 - Is not accessed, analysed, or retained by Arcnine for any purpose

6. Disclosure to Third Parties

As Arcnine does not collect or store personal data:

- No personal data is shared, disclosed, transferred, licensed, sold, or otherwise made available to third parties
 - No personal data is shared with affiliates, vendors, service providers, advisors, or external entities
 - No cross-border transfer of personal data takes place

7. Data Security and Safeguards

As Arcnine does not process or retain personal data, risks typically associated with unauthorised access, misuse, or data breaches do not arise within Arcnine's systems.

Nevertheless, Arcnine maintains appropriate administrative and technical controls to ensure:

- Secure communication infrastructure
 - Restricted internal access to systems
 - Compliance with general information security best practices

8. Retention

Arcnine does not retain personal data in any form.

Any information that may be incidentally received in the course of communication is not stored, archived, or preserved beyond what is necessary to respond to the specific interaction.

9. Rights of Individuals

As Arcnine does not collect or store personal data:

- Requests for access, correction, erasure, portability, or restriction of processing do not generally arise
- No automated decision-making or profiling is conducted

If an individual believes that personal data may have been inadvertently shared, Arcnine encourages prompt contact using the details below.
